Color matching and fine motor XGirl worked on color matching and fine motor skills using this Butterfly Color Matching worksheet from my Crayola Dry Erase Activity Centers. Which one different? Play by figuring out how every tangram puzzle piece fits into the outlined shapes on the page. For this reason, my kids and I have been doing a number of activities focused on insects in recent weeks. Your students will love assembling these free Arctic Puzzles! They are a great addition to your Arctic Animals Theme, and a fun companion to the book Into the Arctic by Roger Priddy. Into the Arctic is an informational book that features arctic animals and their habitats through winter, spring, and fall. The unique see-through portions on each page are a fun and interesting addition to this book. Ants on a log And of course, I couldn’t do an insects unit without introducing the kids to a favorite snack from my childhood – ants on a log! I put almond butter (but you could use peanut butter or sunflower seed butter) on sticks of celery to make the “log,” then added raisins on top to create the “ants.” The kids thought these were so funny and they gobbled them up!
